::DISCUSSION QUESTIONS::

1. Are there specific industries (ie tech, art) that are fuelling gentrification in your town? How are local politicians and city staff complicit in the process? What would organizing around this look like?
2. How can so-called "above-ground" organizing efforts be strengthened by more clandestine actions, and vice versa? What are the pitfalls and possible points of tension that could emerge, and how might these tensions be avoided or made useful?
3. What potential is there to connect struggles around gentrification to struggles against police brutality, or police more generally?
4. What about connections to struggles against colonialism, immigration raids and/or far-right anti-migrant organizing?
